"The Calling of Congregational Leadership" by Larry McSwain

This lecture will focus on a multiple meanings of the vocation of ministry for both clergy and lay leaders.

The class will give attention to three aspects of functioning effectively as a congregational leader: the being of the leader, the knowledge base for leading, and the multiple doing tasks required of the leader.

Primary emphasis is given to the tasks of dreaming or visioning for a missional congregation, caring for the church and community, organizing for the mission, and resourcing the congregation.
